Villa Palladio in Jaipur, India, which is owned by accessories designer-turned-interior designer Barbara Molini.

Whether you're dreaming of a vibrant villa in Jaipur or a cosy weekend in the Barossa, we have a destination to suit your travel style.

VILLA PALLADIO, India

Few are as gung-ho with colour as the Italian-Swiss hotelier Barbara Miolini. In 2005, she took a sabbatical from her job at a design studio creating accessories and detoured to India on a whim. She never left. Feeling that people needed a bolthole outside of Jaipur (aka the Pink City) but closer to town than anything already out there, Barbara went on the hunt to find a location for a hotel. She could hardly believe it when she discovered a turreted manor house in a forested area with leopards roaming around, only half an hour's drive into the countryside. "Everything was handpainted," she says, "which took four months." villa-palladio-jaipur.com
